UN Warns Congo It May Shoot

By MILTON BESSER

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council today warned Congo that it might be forced to pull out the more than 11,000 troops it now has in the Congo.

There were also reports Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld had warned Africa's U.N. representatives that if disintegration persists with Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba's government, the U.N. might be forced to pull out the more than 11,000 troops it now has in the Congo.

In a determined bid to keep the Congo situation from collapsing altogether, Hammarskjöld called in the chief U.N. representatives of the four major world powers Thursday. He reportedly stressed to them that Big Four unanimity was vital to avert complete chaos in the New African republic.

Clashed with Hammarskjöld for 45 minutes in the unusual joint session were U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov, British Minister Harold Beeley and French Ambassador Armand Berard.

The Soviet Union has sharply disputed Hammarskjöld's interpretation of his powers under the U.N. force. It has called for complete withdrawal of all Belgian troops.

Scheduling of the council meeting awaited arrival of Lumumba's delegation, delayed in London overnight after their Soviet jetliner was denied permission to land at Idlewild Airport because it had not passed noise test requirements. The State Department finally persuaded the New York Port Authority to admit the plane, and it was expected today.

August Rain to Date Is Twice 1959's

Thursday's torrential downpour in Hope made the total rainfall for August to date more than double the total for the entire month of August 1959, the Pull & Truck Branch Experiment Station reported today.

The storm at midday Thursday registered a total of 1.77 inches in about two hours, the station said.

This put the official total for August to date at 5.1 inches, compared to 2.38 inches for all of August last year.

The total rainfall for 1960 through this date in August is 27.52 inches, against 31.15 for 1959 through the entire month of August.

The precipitation cut temperatures Thursday, the high being only 85 degrees, with an overnight low of 69.

Planes Try Flying Catch of Capsule

VANDERBILT AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Air Force Flying Boxcars left from Hawaiian runways today to try to make a flying catch of the falling space capsule of Discoverer XIV.

The latest Discoverer satellite, launched Thursday is circling the globe every 94 1/2 minutes, whirling toward what the Air Force hopes will be a new space-age first.

Last week the capsule of Discoverer XIII was plucked from the sea near Hawaii by the Navy for the first recovery of an item from orbit.

Today the Air Force hopes to make the first aerial recovery of such an object. The transports—trailing trapeze-like rigs—tried and failed to snag the capsule of Discoverer XIII.

They lost it, like baseball outfielders with the sun in their eyes, because they couldn't get a radio fix on the capsule's beeping transmitter.

As before, the capsule will pop loose from the orbiting rocket on its 17th pass across the North Pole. Forward-firing rockets will slow the falling capsule and then, once in the atmosphere, a parachute is to over it toward the target area in Hawaiian waters.

There are no instruments in the capsule—nothing alive. Air Force officials have mentioned possibility of putting a monkey in an early Discoverer shot.

It was fired here at 12:57 p.m. Thursday—15 minutes behind schedule, because of a space traffic jam. The rocket from Discoverer XIII was overhead at about the same time, and the Air Force waited for it to hustle past so it wouldn't interfere with tracking of the newest Discoverer.

Dollarway Asks Support of State Law

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — The Dollarway school board announced yesterday it will admit a six-year-old Negro girl to an all-white school this fall and appeal to school patrons to support the board in its use of the Arkansas pupil placement law.

A board statement said the action was an attempt to keep the placement law alive and comply with a federal court order to desegregate.

"We sincerely believe the patrons will understand and support this action," the statement added.

Dollarway has been the scene of several minor racial incidents and Gov. E. Faubus predicted yesterday before the board announcement that trouble might accompany any desegregation there.

There was no immediate reaction to the board's decision. Jack Boren, a leader in the segregationist Dollarway Citizens' Council, declined comment but indicated he thought the board had done all in its power to preserve segregated schools.

Dollarway is located on the northwest edge of Pine Bluff, 45 miles southeast of Little Rock. The girl is Dolores Jean York, one of the three Negro preschoolers who applied May 5 for admittance to the first grade at the all-white Dollarway school. The other two applicants were assigned to an all-Negro school.

Dollarway school patrons asked Faubus in 1959 to do all in his power to block race-mixing at the school. Since then, crosses have been burned, a Negro has been hanged in effigy, and Negro parents have been stoned after attending a pupil assignment hearing.

Ivory Anderson, a 75-year-old Negro, said two white men beat him after he drove the other preschool Negro children to the white school to register May 5.

The placement law has been upheld as constitutional on its face but the U. S. Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis is presently considering a Negro appeal which claims that the board has misused the law, which was designed to limit integration.

The board statement said the board believes it has used the assignment law constitutionally and in good faith and is complying with a federal court order to desegregate.

The appeal resting with the St. Louis court is from a lower court ruling which upheld the Dollarway board in its decision to consider integration at the first grade level but not to allow "lateral" transfers from one school to another by older students.

The appeal was taken by three Negro teenagers who were denied admittance to Dollarway under the pupil assignment laws.

Mrs. Roy W. Horine Dies in Illinois

Mrs. Roy W. Horine, 73, died at Champaign, Ill., August 15. She was the former Miss Leila Coffield. She is survived by two brothers Herman and Howard Coffield; four sisters, Mrs. Lorene Pickard of Little Rock, Mrs. C. E. Swindle of Texarkana, Mrs. Jess Pickins of DeQueen, and Mrs. E. H. Weaver of Prescott and several nieces and nephews. The funeral will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at Forrest Hill Church with Rev. Wesley Thompson officiating, with Herndon Cornelius in charge. Burial will be in Forrest Hill cemetery.

Decker Is New Chief of Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. George Henry Decker, a non-West Pointer with a solid background in military high finance, has been nominated as chief of staff of the Army.

President Eisenhower announced his selection late Thursday.

Decker, 58, now the Army vice chief of staff, would succeed Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer. When Air Force Gen. Nathan F. Twining retires later this year, Lemnitzer is slated to succeed him as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Decker was the Army's budget officer from 1950 to 1952 and its comptroller from 1952 to 1955. He received a degree in economics from Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., in 1924.

Only six other generals who were not West Point graduates reached the top of the Army command. The latest was Gen. George C. Marshall who was Army chief of staff during World War II.

Powers Sentenced to 10 Years, With Only 3 to Be in Red Prison

WASHINGTON (AP) — At this point, in the presidential campaign, just a few weeks old, the Democrats are doing the catching. The Republicans have put them on the defensive, or tried to, in one way or another.

Just this week a Gallup Poll showed Vice President Richard M. Nixon leading Sen. John F. Kennedy in the presidential race by 50 to 44 per cent of the votes questioned, with a 6 per cent undecided.

This preference may switch around once the present session of Congress ends—perhaps around Labor Day—and the campaign stars in earnest. But, coming so early, the poll gives the Democrats cause for concern.

This session of Congress, where Democrats overwhelmingly outnumber Republicans, was supposed to last three or four weeks. The Senate has been in session almost two weeks with little solid accomplishment except a minimum wage bill passed Thursday night.

But the Republicans have been working overtime to use this session to embarrass the Democrats. For instance: The Democratic platform promises big strides in civil rights. The Republicans have challenged the Democrats to make good now.

A civil rights fight by Southern Democrats is being planned.

Sen. John F. Kennedy told a reporter he was quite hopeful the House will agree to most of the Senate provisions. But experience on differences between the two branches involving labor legislation in 1958 and 1959 cast doubt on this.

The Democratic presidential nominee was named to head the seven Senate conferees on the bill. He was chief sponsor of the Senate version.

The Senate bill would increase the present $1 wage floor to $1.25 an hour and would bring under the fair labor standards act about four million workers not now covered.

The much less comprehensive House bill would fix a $1.15 minimum and cover about 1,400,000 additional employees.

Kennedy and his supporters were able to beat back all amendments he opposed except one concerning a relatively minor provision.

But the Massachusetts senator did have to make an important concession to defeat the amendment he considered the most serious threat to his bill.

In order to get the votes needed to reject this amendment, sponsored by Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.), Kennedy agreed to elimination from the bill of coverage for about 900,000 workers. Originally his measure would have brought almost five million new employees under the act.

Those eliminated from the bill were employees of hotels, restaurants, motels, auto dealers and farm implement dealers.

The most important coverage provisions of the Kennedy bill would bring retail stores and service establishments under the law for the first time.

Under the measure, these would be covered if they work for enterprises doing a million dollars' worth of business in a year.

The Monroney amendment would have covered such enterprises only if they had outlets in two or more states. Kennedy insisted this would have destroyed the basis of his bill. The amendment was turned back only by a 50-48 margin.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One presidential candidate was pleased today about his success in the Senate. The other talked of his success in the South. And, hardly stopping to savor the success, both plunged further into campaign work.

The Democratic nominee, Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, scored the success in the Senate. His $1.25 minimum wage bill was passed 62-34 Thursday night.

The Republican nominee, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, was highly optimistic about his chances in the South. His press aide, Herbert G. Klein, said the optimism stemmed from reaction to his speech in Greensboro, N. C., Wednesday night.

Klein said Nixon may make more speeches in the often-Democratic South than he had planned originally.

On the other hand, Democrats also talked optimistically of their chances in the South. Matthew McCloskey of Philadelphia, treasurer of the national committee, met with party leaders from seven Southern states in Atlanta Thursday.

Here he said: "It is my personal opinion that the Democratic party will carry every state in the South in November."

Campaign work for Nixon and Kennedy covered mainly organizational meetings and speech schedules Thursday.

Nixon conferred with congressional farm leaders and announced plans for a series of regional meetings to get farmer views on major agricultural questions.

Kennedy concentrated on a difficult task.

Senate O.K.'s Wage Bill; Up to House

Yanks Near Newport's Tennis Title

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP) — Two tall youths who possibly represent America's best tennis hopes go against Australian opponents today in the quarter-finals of the Newport Casino Tennis Tournament.

Ron Holmberg, 22, of Brooklyn, seeded second in this tourney, meets Robert Mark of Australia, seeded fifth. Earl Buchholz Jr., 19, of St. Louis, takes on unseeded Robert Hewitt, who ranks No. 4 in Australia. Buchholz is seeded third here.

One semifinal pair for Saturday was established by the two quarterfinals Thursday. Top-seeded Rod Laver of Australia defeated Wilney Reed of Alameda, Calif., seeded sixth 6-3, 6-4, 6-3. Laver's opponent in the semis will be Bobby Wilson of England; Victor Thursday over Chick McKinley of St. Louis, 6-4, 4-6, 10-12, 6-3, 6-3.

Farm Union Against Proposal 52

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Farmers Union has gone on record against Amendment 52, a school-closing measure to be voted on in the November general election.

A resolution passed yesterday at the end of the group's convention here urged defeat of the amendment, saying it would abolish the constitutional guarantee of free public education, deny children their "rightful heritage" and abolish guarantees that taxes levied for education would be used for that purpose.

The Farmers Union also passed resolutions endorsing a federal aid to education bill now before Congress which would provide funds for both school construction and teachers' salaries, but opposing federal aid for construction only. It also urged that the state public school fund receive at least 62.2 percent of general revenue above $3 million dollars a year.

The group also voted in favor of continuing federal production and price controls, urged lower loan interest rates for farmers and proposed a program to get more food processing plants in the state.

Javits (R-NY) says rumors accusing Nixon of anti-Semitism haven't "the slightest shred of truth."

Great Britain's losses in the World War I included 750,000 killed.

And the House bill doesn't go nearly so far.

While Nixon has managed to slip off to Maine and North Carolina to make speeches, Kennedy, compelled to stay close to the Senate, has mostly been mending fences. He went to see Eleanor Roosevelt who was against his nomination. Soon he'll visit former President Truman who also had opposed him.

Meanwhile, the publicity section of the Republican National Committee has been beating the propaganda pants off its opposite number in the Democratic National Committee.

Practically every day the Republicans have been sending out two kinds of letters. One, while contains pep talks and advice on how to get out the vote. The other, in a pink envelope and marked "Bale Line," contains attacks on Kennedy.

The Democratic National Committee's offices here have been in a kind of turmoil, trying to mesh the regular staff in with the Kennedy supporters who are to work with the national committee people for the duration.

The Democrats' publicity section says it will soon get rolling with some choice things about the Republicans.

Conservative Democrats on the Senate Finance Committee teamed up with conservative Republicans to urge a much narrower medical care arrangement. So on this also, in the short session, the Democrats may not be able to make good on the platform.

All week, led by Kennedy, Democrats, or rather just some of them, have pushed for an increase from $1 to $1.25 in the minimum wage, while bringing many more millions of people under its protection.

The Democratic platform promised this, too. But in the face of strong opposition from both Republicans and members of his own party, Kennedy had to yield ground on the number of new workers he wanted covered in order to win passage of the bill.

SUMMER'S DAY PASTORAL, 1960—Timeless serenity of summer day in the country is caught in this photograph of cattle and mares roaming a field near Rapid City, S.D. The picture has no news value as such but perhaps cameraman

Rudy Vetter of the American Red Cross saw in it a more permanent news story than the current accounts of man's brief, tortured activities over the world that make such unpleasant reading. It's been a nice summer after all, hasn't it?

GOP Puts

Democrats could stretch this session well beyond Labor Day and even ruin chances for any other legislation. Kennedy and his running mate, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, sidetracked the civil rights bills.

This gave the Republicans a chance to wrap the "look-who's talking" complaint around the Democrats' necks. And they got another chance to do the same when President Eisenhower challenged the Democrats to pass a 22-point program he offered.

It would have been impossible for Congress to tackle such a program in such a short period—if Congress' usual tardy performance on legislation is a criterion—but when the Democrats brushed this aside, the Republicans had fresh ammunition.

The Democratic platform promised medical care for the aged on a wide scale and under the Social Security program. But Kennedy and Johnson, who backed this idea ran into a bottleneck within their own party.

Russian defense counsel asked for less without specifying the years. The verdict said without explanation that the first three years of the 10-year sentence were to be served in prison with the remainder presumably in some other form of detention.

As soon as the verdict was announced, the entire courtroom burst into applause but Powers' wife and mother collapsed in tears and sobs.

The verdict was delivered by Gen. Victor Borisoglobovsky, chairman of the three-man military court. The court had deliberated 4 hours, 35 minutes after hearing concluding statements by prosecution and defense.

Powers also made a brief statement, expressing regret again for his actions and pointing out that his spy mission had failed.

The judge said the sentence was to run from May 1.

MOSCOW (AP) — The prosecution today asked the maximum prison sentence of 15 years for U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers.

Winding up his summation of the case against the American flier, Soviet Prosecutor Roman Rudenko said he did not demand death—the supreme penalty prescribed by Soviet law for the espionage charge to which Powers pleaded guilty.

"I have every reason to ask the court to impose the supreme penalty," Rudenko said, "but taking into account the repentance expressed by prisoner Powers, I ask only that he be sentenced to 15 years' detention."

The capacity audience in the Hall of Columns in the Soviet Trade Union Building broke into stormy applause at Rudenko's concluding words.

Powers, sitting in the prisoner's box, showed no emotion. His wife, Barbara, lowered her head and rested it on the red plush railing of the box at the rear of the hall from which she has watched the trial for three days.

The marriage of Mrs. Pat Casey and Sgt. Leroy Lasure, U. S. Army retired, was solemnized on Thursday, August 18 in the home of the bride, The Rev. Arlis Downs officiated at the single-ring ceremony and the couple's only attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Downs. After a wedding trip to Hot Springs the couple will be at home at 823 South Main.

Miss Catherine Del Vecchio Honored With Bridal Shower

Miss Ann Ward was hostess for a surprise shower Wednesday August 17 honoring Miss Catherine Del Vecchio, bride-elect of Jerry Cottingham of Prescott. A pink carnation corsage was pinned at the shoulder of the honoree's brown and white dress.

Pink, green, and white flowers were seen in the home. Several clever games were played. When the group played games, the last game was "won" by Miss Del Vecchio and the many nice shower gifts were presented to her.

In the dining room a cutwork cloth covered the table, and Formosa fern, pink roses, and white candles were used as decorations. Mrs. D. E. Faris poured the punch, and Mrs. Julian Hoxey served the cake squares. The 18 guests included Mrs. J. D. Cottingham of Prescott, mother of the bridegroom-elect, who was the only one from out of town.

John Oliver Drowns Near Eldorado

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP)—The body of John Oliver, 60, of near Magnolia, was recovered today from Grand Mary Lake, 20 miles east of here.

Oliver drowned last night, apparently after his motorboat hit a snag, throwing him into the water. Coroner J. H. Pison Jr. ruled the death accidental.

Sheriff O. E. Bishop said Oliver, his wife and another couple had rented a cabin at the lake. Last night about 10 o'clock Oliver told the others he was going to hunt frogs.

Shortly afterward, Oliver's boat was found running wild in the lake. Bishop said a large snag near where the body was found led to the theory that Oliver had been thrown from the boat.

— Shipley Studio photo Mrs. Daylo McKenzie Stark

Saturday evening, August 13 at the First Baptist Church Miss Barbara Jo Ann White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey McKee White, and Doyle McKenzie Stark of Little Rock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Stark of Prescott were united in holy matrimony.

Officiating at the double-ring ceremony, before an after decorated with pink gladioli and greenery, was the Rev. Percy Hoffpauir of Prescott. Miss Mina Lynn Liptford of Cabot, a former college roommate of the bride, provided the organ music. Before the exchange of vows the pink tapers were lighted by Miss Claud Ann Sutton.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a short, white satin bridal gown with scooped neckline appliqued with Chantilly lace. The dress had elbow length sleeves, and it featured a pointed midriff bodice with bands of the lace giving a draped effect to the full skirt. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a satin Queen Anne headpiece encrusted with seed pearls and sequins. Short white gloves completed her attire. She carried a colonial bouquet of fleur d' amour centered with a purple-throated white orchid.

Mrs. Billy Don Dugan was the bride's honor attendant. She wore a street-length dress of pink chiffon and a pink velvet hat trimmed with pearls and net. She carried pink carnations.

James Stark of Oklahoma City, Okla., served his brother as best man.

A reception in the home of the bride's parents was held following the wedding. When the newlyweds left for a short trip, the bride wore an olive brown silk suit with a lace bodice and matching jacket. She pinned the orchid from her bridal bouquet at her shoulder.

Mr. and Mrs. Stark will be at home in Little Rock.

DOROTHY DIX

Troubled Wife Pushing Fate

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE
Dear Helen: I've always believed that hard work and prayer will see me through. It has no now. I am at home a good job and have been married six years to the most wonderful man a woman ever had. I would be happy but for my ailing mother whom I've supported for years. That's why I work.

The time has come when I'd like to quit and start raising a family. Mother is not demanding but things come up that were not figured on. My husband isn't in good health. Factories are rough place to work nowadays.

I've either got to get a job where I can work at home or lose my plans. I have been writing and several short stories. Always turned down. I've spent a lot of money buying books to help me learn how to write but no luck. If only I could get started, then I would have a little income to see me through. Try and help me. If you don't, I have no one else.

Mrs. H. Some problems solve themselves. I've done plenty late when the time comes for you to give up your job and raise a family. The way will come. Meanwhile be thankful that you are able to support your mother. As for writing, you've put the cart before the horse. Forget the money. Write for the love of writing. Strive for perfection in this difficult but rewarding art. Love rejection slips as a challenge, not a calamity. Believe in yourself.

Canadians Attacked in Congo

By LYNN HEINERLING

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Congolese soldiers attacked members of a Canadian United Nations detachment at Leopoldville airport today, apparently mistaking them for Belgians. The captain commanding the Canadian detachment was knocked unconscious.

At about the same time, the United States ambassador was being and — never give up. All this plus even a dash of talent, will start the cash register ringing. But to be a writer, you must also be a reader. Are you? If not, get the habit.

Dear Helen: I'm going steady. My girl friend said if I was going steady with this boy I should have a ring. She said I wasn't going steady unless I had a ring. I don't think you have to have a ring to go steady. Who is right?

Dear Carol: A ring formalizes an engagement. Going steady is not the equivalent of being engaged; therefore no ring is necessary. But why go steady? Be free. Enjoy yourself.

Dear Helen: My boy friend gave me a snapshot of himself. We are both 13 and see each other once a week at church. Does this mean that I should give him one of myself?

Dear D.L.: No. It simply means your boy friend wants to remind you that he is in the picture. No pen meant!

Nixon Kicks Off His Dixie Invasion

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon has kicked off his vote quest in the racial-minded South with an espousal of civil rights, an endorsement of sit-in demonstrations and a plea to keep religion out of politics.

The Republican presidential nominee surprised a capacity crowd in the Municipal Coliseum here Wednesday night by speaking out on civil rights. He said his position on that subject is the same in the South as it is in the North, the East and the West.

He said he stands on the GOP platform as "an honest program that will produce progress" in the area of civil rights and denounced the Democratic platform as one that promises "far more than they can produce."

Nixon tossed his civil rights views in near the end of a formal address to an enthusiastic crowd estimated at more than 12,000.

He was applauded repeatedly as he expounded his position on other topics and called for disregard of party labels. The ardor of his audience dwindled noticeably as he called for "progress" in promoting civil rights. But he won more applause when he added "I recognize that law alone is not the answer" to the civil rights problem.

His audience included a number of Negroes. In his public address, Nixon did not refer to sit-in demonstrations or to the issue of religion, but centered on what he said were basic differences between the two major parties on domestic and foreign policies.

These differences, he said, bring the Republican party more in line with the principles of Jefferson, Jackson and Wilson and justify the departure from Democratic ranks of Southerners who, he said, have been deserted by the Democratic party.

At an earlier news conference, Nixon said he supported the objectives of sit-in demonstrations which students started here early this year and which spread to other states.

Asked at this televised news conference whether religion would be a major issue in the campaign, Nixon said he hoped it would not. His Democratic opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, is a Roman Catholic.

"Religion is not a proper issue," Nixon said. "The way I am going to deal with the religion issue is to talk always about other issues and not about that."

golese soldier from keeping an appointment with Premier Patrice Lumumba. The Premier reinforced the snub later by ignoring the ambassador at an outdoor ceremony.

A Congolese delegation, meanwhile, headed for New York to present the Congo's case to the United Nations Security Council. It included one known pro-Westerner.

The Canadians attacked at the airport were part of a signal detachment about to take off from Luluabourg in a United Nations plane.

Earlier, Lumumba renewed his threat to invade Katanga province, mistaking them for Belgians. The captain commanding the Canadian detachment was knocked unconscious.

Lumumba voiced his threat at a news conference Wednesday as U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld was back at U.N. headquarters in New York seeking support in the Security Council for his hands-off policy toward the new African republic's internal disputes.

Lumumba said his army could enter Katanga alone and "finish the problem in a week." But he threatened to seek help from "a country disposed to help us." Possibly he meant Ghana, or even the Soviet Union, from which Lumumba has threatened to seek military help before.

Lumumba also demanded that Hammarskjöld, if he returns to the Congo, bring with him the 14-nation team of Asian-African observers that the premier previously demanded supplant the secretary general in control of the U. N. operation in the Congo.

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Congolese soldiers knocked a Canadian captain unconscious and attacked four other Canadian soldiers today at Leopoldville airport. The Canadians were part of a signal detachment en route to Luluabourg in a United Nations plane.

Capt. J. C. Paschereau, in charge of the group, was knocked unconscious by a rifle butt wielded by a member of the Force Publique — or Congolese army. The Congolese then forced some Canadians to lie on the ground and made one strip to his shorts.

Identification cards, weapons and other belongings were taken. Capt. Mike Jackson, Canadian army public relations officer, said in relating the incident.

He said it occurred as about 13 Canadians were preparing to take off. They had boarded the plane and its engines were running when about 30 Congolese soldiers blocked the plane.

Indiana Mob Threatens Child Killer

BOONVILLE, Ind. (AP)—A convicted rapist accused of killing 11-year-old Avell (Money) Terry was held under close guard today after an angry crowd of townspeople gathered outside the jail.

Bennett O. Hushfield, 34-year-old truck maker, was ordered held without bail Wednesday on a preliminary charge of first-degree murder after the little girl's dismembered body was found.

Sheriff Robert B. Shelton and State Police Sgt. Wendell Opel said Hushfield orally admitted dumping Avell's dismembered body on the Ohio River bank and in the river, 25 miles southeast of Boonville.

The little girl disappeared Tuesday on a trip downtown to buy candies for a birthday cake for her 8-year-old sister, Candace. Hushfield was arrested Tuesday night and at first denied any knowledge of the case.

His statement and discovery of the body came Wednesday. Sheriff Shelton said a crowd of about 200 persons gathered outside the Warrick County Jail Wednesday night.

"They want a quick trial, and they had a tree picked out across the street they wanted to use," Shelton said. He said that several townspeople were thrown at his deputies two of them scoring hits.

Shelton said Hushfield, 34, was in his cell nervously but said nothing.

Hushfield wore overall pants and a blue shirt in his court appearance. He had a black eye and police said it was the result of a blow from Avell's father, Robert H. Terry, who had been allowed to question the child.

Police said Hushfield repeatedly meeting the girl when she stopped to help her pick up some peanuts she had dropped on the sidewalk. He said she accepted a ride in his car — something her parents had warned her not to do.

Municipal Police Meet, El Dorado

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP)—About 150 delegates were expected today for the opening of the Arkansas Municipal Police Association annual convention.

Officers were to be elected at this afternoon's business session. State Sen. G. Byrd of Tulsa County Springs speaks tonight.

Friday's highlight will be a pistol shoot.

THE WOLF THAT RODE

THE STORY: Brem Fasken has taken sides against his sister Jo in a range war. Jo, owner of the Hobbled O, is allied with her foreman, Bill Tice, and a gun-slinger called Rhodes is land Red, in an attempt to control the range. Brem has taken sides with Trone, a small rancher, outwitted by the cattlemen at Jo's insistence, as a rustler.

CHAPTER XI
There was a corral behind the place and, after pulling his gear and watching the animal roll, Brett left the room inside the poles and fetched a couple of armfuls of hay from the nearest of three weathered stacks. Then he cuffed himself off, washed up at the tank, ran wet fingers through his hair and tramped back.

Smell of woodsmoke, blended pleasantly with coffee smell and cooking hog above the variety of odors commonly found in a country store. Brett got out his pipe on the porch and went in. He found the sack of tobacco and picked up a couple and the man came out of a door with his breakfast and put it down on the bar that flanked the far side of the room. "Four bits," he said with his eyes on the tobacco.

Brett paid him and tried the coffee. It was strong enough to walk and hot enough to defeat a eagle but it wasn't like anything he'd tasted before. "Jamaica," the hairy one said with a scowl. "Ain't it good enough for you?"

"Slips down mighty easy," Brett nodded, and dug in. Besides the coffee and side meat there were refried potatoes with considerable black in them and a thick slab of mush. And two biscuits that had obviously been around longer than Brett had.

When he'd cleaned out the plate Brett loaded his pipe. The man was still watching him, perched on a counter with his shirt still unbuttoned and his pale little eyes never missing a wink.

Brett said tentatively, "Know a feller named Trone?"
"Be another six bits for the hay," the man said.
"Heard he might have some broncos could stand a little work on 'em. If you could give me some idea where he lived," Brett explained, "I figured I might look him up." He laid three quarters on the bar.

The man considered him, turning it over. "Straight north," he said finally. "Eighteen mile."
"Obliged," Brett said, putting a match to his pipe. He felt the storekeeper's eyes, as he left, still following him. He gave the roan a drink and saddled up and set off.

He did a heap of thinking without improving his mood. By all the signs and signal smokes no one but a simon-pure idiot would push this thing one whisker further.

Those who knew him, didn't want him around and the rest of those people distrusted strangers on general principles. He wouldn't be at all surprised if that 18 miles straight north took him nowhere near the place he was aiming for.

Couldn't much blame them for copping him slantways. Nor for the fears that kept gnawing them. The hazards of raising cattle were obnoxious enough under the best of conditions. The big cowboy didn't live who could draw comfort or pleasure from the prospect of neighboring with any bunch of starving squatters. Nor could such a one entertain anything more than open suspicion for another big owner feeding off the same grass and coly bound in the same direction. In the nature of the things he was up against a man had either to push or see himself frozen out. Small owners had to make it any way they could. Some of them had come into this country honest, but a man with a family to provide for was bound to find honesty a pretty dubious virtue without enough on the table to keep body and soul together. Mostly men hankered to do the right thing but sometimes that thing could get pretty well hidden. They were scared and without any kind of security and it was going to go worse. Made desperate enough some were bound to get killed. Every man caught in this bind survived that much.

Right now they were eating out of Hobbled O's hand by this move against Trone could go either way. Designed to discourage, it could also unite them, pointing up what could happen if they didn't stick together. Right now they were scared, desiring any connection with a man who'd incurred Jo's wrath.

Flagler wasn't scared. Been no sign the man was even much worried. Brett was sure, however, the Currycomb boss correctly assessed what his bigger neighbor was up to. He'd have guessed, no man having eyes sharp as Flagler would miss understanding of what could happen.

Elizabeth Sails Despite Dock Strike
SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — The Queen Elizabeth sailed for New York today, her sirens hooting defiance at a wildcat union strike.
The 83,73-ton Cunard liner, with 1,000 passengers aboard, moved away from piers on the dock 40 minutes ahead of schedule. She was to pick up another 804 passengers at Cherbourg this afternoon, then head across the Atlantic.
The strike last week forced cancellation of the sailing of the Queen Mary and her passengers were flown to the United States. But with the sailing of the Queen Elizabeth and the 21,600-ton Saxonia for Canada Wednesday, there was speculation the strike was breaking up.
A strike leader told a mass meeting in Liverpool that proposals for a return to work would be considered at a meeting today.
The strikers seek a 4-point pay increase and a shorter working week. They have rejected a pay increase of 2 pounds 10 shillings ($7) negotiated by the National Seamen's Union.

30,000 Steel Men Idled by Rail Strike
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Some 150 nonoperating employees struck a shuttle railroad today in a contract dispute, idling five U. S. Steel Corp. mills served by the railroad.
About 30,000 steelworkers were thrown out of work by the strike. Negotiations failed late Wednesday night. No further talks were scheduled.
The striking workers—tower operators, clerks and maintenance men—are represented by the United Steelworkers Union.
About 5,000 other railroad employees were idled because of the strike.
The railroad, a U. S. Steel subsidiary, hauls raw materials and steel to and between the company's Duquesne, Homestead, Edgar Thomson, Irvin and Clairton works.
The railroad also serves 12 other area industrial plants, but most of these have made arrangements for transportation and do not plan to shut their operations.
The union is seeking substantially the same contract benefits received by basic steelworkers early this year. The settlement provided an approximate 38-cent-an-hour pay hike or an average wage of $3.10 an hour.
Exact terms of the union demand were not disclosed.
Railroad President Fred W. Oke claims the union's demands were too costly.
Present wage rates of the railroad workers were not disclosed.
